

ABSTRACT

The invention concerns a method of transferring at least one message for the establishment of a collaboration session (126) by a collaboration session manager (125) between a plurality of clients, characterised in that a messaging system (122) is associated with the collaboration session manager (125) and in that the method comprises the steps of the reception, by the messaging system associated with the collaboration session manager, of a message generated by a client of a collaboration session, the message comprising a plurality of addresses of clients of the collaboration session, of activation of a collaboration session by the collaboration session manager (125), of obtaining an address of the activated collaboration session and of transfer of at least one message intended for each collaboration session client address for establishing the collaboration session, the message comprising the address of the collaboration session activated. The invention also concerns an associated device and system.